Tips

- › Wash hands before beginning and lay down a clean, smooth work surface.
- › Baking time can vary depending on the oven and clay thickness. Take care to avoid burning the clay.
- › Use a protective oven mitt or similar to remove the tray from the oven and do not handle the hot clay. Leave the clay to cool and harden on the tray.
- › Blue dish: 21g white clay, 10g green clay, 10g blue clay, 5g purple clay.
Pink dish: 21g white clay, 10g green clay, 10g pink clay, 5g purple clay.
Orange dish: 21g white clay, 10g orange clay, 10g pink clay, 5g purple clay.

How To Make A Polymer Clay Trinket Tray

Take 21g of white clay, 10g of green clay, 10g of blue clay, and 5g of purple clay. Roll each colour into string-like strips.

Twist the strips together and roll them into a ball. To create a marbled effect, press, twist and warp the clay with your fingers until your desired pattern is achieved.

Roll the clay into a ball with your hands, then use the roller to roll it into a flat circle. Approx. 5mm thick.

Gently mould the clay into a trinket dish shape and pinch the edges up to create a lip.

Repeat steps 1-4 to make another 2 trinket dishes. See the amounts of clay needed under 'Tips'.

Preheat the oven to 140°Celsius for 10 minutes. Place the trinket dishes on an oven tray lined with baking paper. Bake for 15 minutes. Baking time may vary depending on the clay thickness and oven. Carefully remove from the oven using an oven mitt and allow to cool before touching.
